Autumn Bottle-Your-Own Event at Charles B. Mitchell Vineyards

Fair Play, Calif., October 10, 2014 – Charles B. Mitchell Vineyards is hosting a bottle-your-own wine experience from November 8 through November 11 to celebrate the end of the harvest season.

Guests will experience being a winemaker in the Sierra Foothills during its most colorful season. The free event will take place from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and offer participants a chance to learn the process of winemaking in a hands-on experience from winemaker Charles B. Mitchell. Enthusiasts who take advantage of the opportunity will learn about the process of bottling wine from filling to sealing and labeling the finished product.

Charles B. Mitchell Vineyards is offering a selection of three wines to bottle during this event: its 2013 Delfino Vineyards Malbec, 2011 Fair Play Merlot and 2013 El Dorado Primitivo. Malbec is a rich wine with flavors of dark cherry, blackberry and plum that pairs well with seasonal stews; Primitivo, the Italian equivalent of California's Zinfandel, is a light, bright and fruit forward wine that goes hand in hand with tomato-based dishes; and Merlot is a smooth, medium-bodied wine perfect for anyone entering the world of red wines.

In the spirit of sustainability, guests can bring their own clean and empty wine bottle to use or purchase new bottles from the winery for 75 cents each. Complimentary corks and labels will be provided. Single bottles of bottle-your-own wine can be purchased for $9.99 per bottle or $6.99 if bought in case quantities.
